The History of Plastics W Graham Ltd

Plastics W Graham Ltd (PWG) was founded in 1952 by William Graham, who saw an opportunity in the emerging DIY market. Soon he was selling "plastic" in the form of ICI acrylic (earlier used in Spitfire canopies). As a distributor of acrylic he found that there were plenty of off cuts and sought to make use of them by fabrication and later making engraved labels. Soon materials were made specifically for signs and the sign industry was born.

The company was a family concern and moved into the current premises in the 70's. Natural expansion and long sightedness has seen the business grow from the early beginnings to a company employing 14 people. PWG joined with a Scottish Plastics Group and this strength coupled with investment in equipment, linking with trade suppliers, creating distributorships and alliances with customers have all helped to develop this Scottish business into a strong industrial and commercial supplier of signs and safety products in Scotland.

The company have many customers in the Scottish Offshore Oil Industry and have forged price agreements that have lasted many years. Our experienced staff, Almost all of whom have been with us for more than ten years, can advise and research requirements over a wide range of products. PWG embraced the concept of a "Quality System" and gained ISO 9002 qualification. Subsequently changing to the ISO 9001 standards.

The company have developed new products to meet demand and these items are exported as far away as China and the USA. From small beginnings PWG has grown to be an international supplier of safety products.

Communications

PWG still opt for face to face meetings when possible.
